THE CHAPERON. Should Get Desperate.

The custom of supporting a chaperon in comfort and even luxury in the incipient stages of lovemaking, while expensive, need not be considered in the light of a hopeless undertaking.

Many parents think a chaperon may be dispensed with, others that one is absolutely necessary. Sometimes the young man likes to have a chaperon along. With some girls it is a great deal safer.

If the chaperon is young and handsome and only slightly married herself, she may be a great addition. In case the girl goes back on you at a critical moment you can fall back on the chaperon. Chaperons of this description betray a world of sympathy during these periods.

If she is old and inevitable, do not ignore her too much. Remember that chaperons have feelings. Feed her up well and if possible give her a mild knockout drop early in the evening.

Occasionally a chaperon will hap pen who has a New England concience. A New England conscience, by the way, is the kind that never enjoys itself unless every one else is miserable. Just as you get a firm hold on the girl and begin to kiss her like a rapid fire machine gur the chaperon will begin to push icebergs on your starboard bow, and the lovely aurora borealis you have been looking at will get frapped. In this emergency devote yourself for a few moments to the chaperon herself. Kiss her, remembering that the only way you can achieve liberty is by risking death. She will either faint away or subside.

If she by any possibility offers to tell the girl's parents on you, insist upon her doing this at once, not omitting the details.

While she is doing this you can make your final arrangements, including the rope ladder, the cloudy night, the six cylinder runabout, the usual press notices and the indignant father's final forgiveness. Lippincott's Magazine.

"Profile?" said the photographer. Then turn the left side, please.' The young girl looked impressed. "Did you notice it?" she asked. You must have sharp eyes. thought it was a fact known only to

"What fact?" asked the photog-

"Why, the fact that the left side of my face is a little better than the right side and that the left profile more regular.'

"Oh!" said the photographer Of course I noticed that. That, ou know, is the case with every oody. Everybody's left profile is better than the right one. The eye is opened more fully, the mouth has a finer curve, the cheek's contour is firmer, and the hair about the temples is thicker.

"Notice after this the profile photographs you come across, and you'll find that nine out of ten of them portray the left side of the face."-

After T. A. Browne, the distinguished Australian, had suddenly leaped into fame as Rolf Boldrewood, author of "Robbery Under Arms," he continued for some years as stipendiary magistrate of his One morning there was brought before him a rough bush boy of fourteen, charged with having held up several other boys on a country road. It was proved that he had presented a pistol at them and compelled them to empty all their pockets for his benefit.

"Dear me!" said the surprised magistrate to the juvenile culprit. What could have prompted you to do such a thing?'

"Reading 'Robbery Under Arms,' ' replied the unabashed boy bush-

One of the residents of the town of Idvor was noted for his parsimony. Let us call him Mr. Wiggles. There was an old major in Idvor who said to his valet one evening, "Go and tell the cook to get me ready a chop and a posched egg."
"Pardon me, major," said the valet, "but have you forgotten that you are dining with Mr. Wiggles tonight?" The major frowned. "Yes," he said, "I had forgotten it. Tell
